IN MEMORIUM

Bishop Timothy Matthews 1907-1991

May He who walks on wounded feet,
Walk with you to the end of the road.
May He who serves with wounded
hands,
Help you to serve each other.
May He who loves with a wounded
heart,
Be your love always.
Bless God wherever you go,
And may you see the face of the Lord
Jesus
In everyone you meet.

Bishop Tim's blessing, which we all know and love, personifies Bishop Tim. It gives us all that he stood for: faith, service to others, love, and his theology/Christology: "May you see the face of the Lord Jesus in everyone you meet." And he meant everyone, from smallest to greatest! Bishop Tim lived his faith: he feared no one, he respected everyone, and he reached out to all in need. He was our greatest teacher, he taught us to meet life head on, with open hearts and open hands. All of us who were given the privilege of being touched by Bishop Tim, have been given a great gift, We shall never forget him.

(Rev.) Patricia Peacock

"To me, Bishop Tim was the most Christlike man I have ever known."

Sam Abbott

The theme for this year's yearbook is "games" and, although I may be stretching the limitations slightly, I do feel some justification in relating my message to an amusing little story. After all, one definition of "game" is, "an amusement or pastime; diversion." So, here goes. Somebody asked me whether I had heard the story about the scientist who crossed an abalone with a crocodile hoping to get an abadile, but getting a crococaloney instead. I hadn't, but I'm glad now that I did because it has set me thinking about some of the predictable and unpredictable results at BCS.

So often we, at BCS, plan carefully and believe we will bring forth abadiles, but get crocks or baloney - for example, a sense of despair on the part of the students who hate to do their prep, or everybody turning in their written assignment or project late. And, on the other hand, sometimes we are so blinded by what we hope and expect - and demand - that we do not recognize a genuine, beautiful abadile when we have one right in front of us - for example, a noisy, sweating, confused bunch of students arguing their way into the classroom, leading to a 15 minute discussion of what the trouble was and how to be more orderly next time.

I can assure you that we aim to breed successful abadiles at BCS. Here are some good examples, both general and specific: good work habits; classrooms of motivated students; deep-seated conflicts settled in class or in the house; a group of excited students preparing for a hike to Mount Orford; well coached students who display a sense of pride and enjoyment during a drama performance, a music recital or choir performance; the value of experiencing, sharing and doing things together in the houses, on the playing fields or on extended trips.

A visitor to the school gave what I thought was a perceptive compliment, "I like your noise," he said. It made me think that sometimes we think we have a crococaloney when we think of school noise, and are unaware of the abadile growing around us. Here are some abadilic noises that are signs of good learning at BCS - an explosion of group laughter; a sudden burst of one-to-one reactions to an idea expressed in an otherwise one-at-a-time discussion; a piece of prose or poetry read with flair; a burst of applause or cheering; animated shoptalk in the staff room; one-at-a-time speaking from a variety of voices coming from classrooms; pure exuberance of students horsing around; and even an occasional, honest, snarl from a teacher.

Of course, there are unseen abadiles and unexpected crococaloneys. But BCS will endeavour, through honest determination and realistic expectations, to develop, nurture and grow abadiles. And that is not a crock of baloney!

Robert M. Ross

Board games, parlour games, card games, long before video games, it was word games that I remember. Every morning, the newspaper brought us a new cryptogram. The mysterious message was always a quotation by a well known author or public figure. My mother would amaze me by breaking the code almost immediately, usually by identifying the author. William Shakespeare was a give-away with the distinctive pattern of a's, c's, i's and l's.

Searching for an appropriate message to our students, I find myself falling back on a quotation from a well known Canadian. It speaks of the principle of leadership and offers an approach that I believe fits well with our B.C.S. philosophy.

With the idea that hard won knowledge is more valuable than that which comes easily, I offer the following quotation:

US Z GSZISA KVTADSGH, RPVTP
KVT VXGK GSZI KVTADSGH, HVA
SMSAK GSZISA DRZARD UK HCADR
GSZICXO PCND SGH. IA. XVANZX USRPTXS.

Enjoy using your minds and the abilities you are developing at B.C.S.

ROSS BOYS

The Ross House game goes on as we sweep the school board with 25 of the greatest minds of history. The glorious sixth and the infamous seventh forms leading the way, The struggle may be hard as we dodge the bombardment of WORK, CREASE, WORK CLASSES WORK, AND FUN (we have a real hard time dodging that one).

Our house parents try their hardest to keep us out of trouble (try being the operative word). But do a very good job at keeping track of birthdays (Thanks for all the cake, Mrs. G)

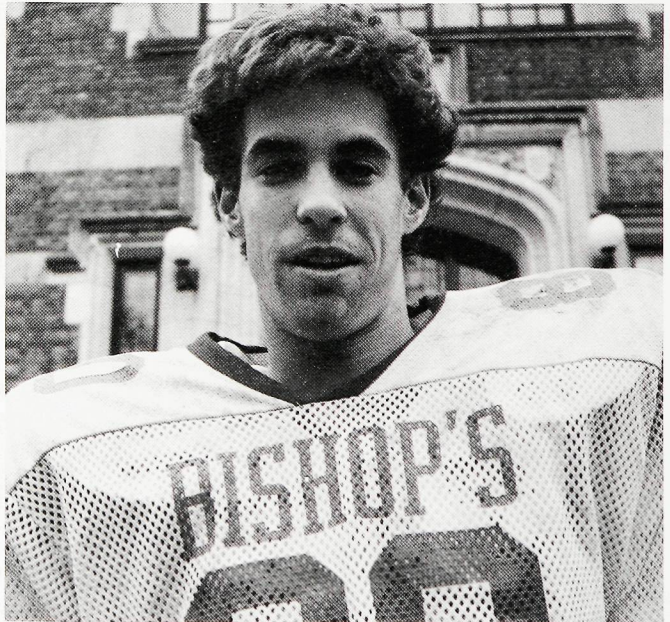

Yet no matter what cards are dealt to us (skip weekends go straight to Monday with no rest, or sent in, stay till 6:30, or even go straight to the Headmaster' office) the Ross house boys just keep playing the game.

Mr. Stankitis asks Brad for the tuck key. Obviously Brad does not know where the tuck key is. Hans comes back from his last class in a very bad mood, Dave asks him why are you in a bad mood? I had to stand up in English again. Samir goes to Nick "Yo, Hammer!!" which means "Yo, Rapper." LIGHTS OUT!! Grant and Hugo are starting to play poker. Paul calls Village Grec for the 4th time of the day, while John is just staring at him. All the girls come into South and they all start to scream, "Oh Sacha, you are so cute!!" Chris finally got his black belt. Michael starts staring at him. Steve and Patrick are having a fight, gee, I wonder who is going to win.

THE ROUND SQUARE PROGRAMME AT B.C.S.

The Round Square programme at B.C.S. has gained a lot of importance since it first became a member in 1986. Our membership in the Round Square Conference continues to provide a variety of international experiences for students. During the course of last year we welcomed 16 exchange students from Britain, Germany, France, the USA and Australia. As well, BCS students are very well represented on the International Service projects run by Round Square schools in various countries.

There are annual conferences held at different Round Square schools, which provides opportunities for Round Square members to know the school and be aware of their daily routines. But the primary reason to get together is to discuss Round Square issues as well as global issues. The 1992 Round Square Conference will be held at BCS itself and our theme is "Celebrating Differences: The International World of Round Square." The 1991 Conference will be held at the Doon School in North India, and BCS will be represented by Mr. & Mrs. Ross, Mr. Peacock, Naheed Ahmed, Molly Carr, Adrian Cox, Sarah Greer and Carolyn Kane.

The Round Square take an active part in paper recycling and fund raising for various Round Square projects. Money is also raised for our foster child, By the name of Amos Ochieng, who attends the Starehe School in Kenya. BCS not only hosts students from a variety of countries it also sends BCS students who are eager to learn about different cultures, which is one of the many purposes of Round Square.

The Players' Club
presents
An Evening of Tom Stoppard

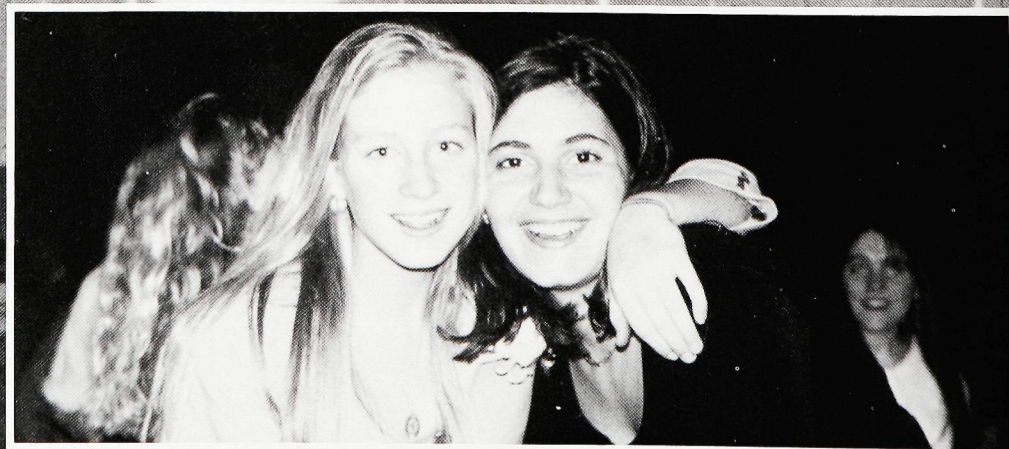

After years and years of teaching the delightful intellectual comedy of Tom Stoppard, director Lewis Evans finally took the plunge and produced two of his one-act plays in November, '91. "After Magritte" is a series of possible improbable tableaux, and "The Real Inspector Hound" is a delightful romp of a detective story that challenges one's grasp of reality.

Staged by Ed Mortimer, costumed by Margaret McGregor, the cast of VI AND VII Form actors glided and bumbled, bounced and stumbled, rolled and fumbled, crawled and tumbled through the evening. We will not soon forget Steve Richardson's eccentric Reginald, Chris Ellis's flat-footed Foot, Sarah Eddy's hopping Mother, Ilene Jelowicki's shuffling Drudge, Amanda Stern's sexy Cynthia, Phil Price's hopeless Hound, Joey Shanahan's airborne Birdboot, or Franklin Raff's wailing Moon.

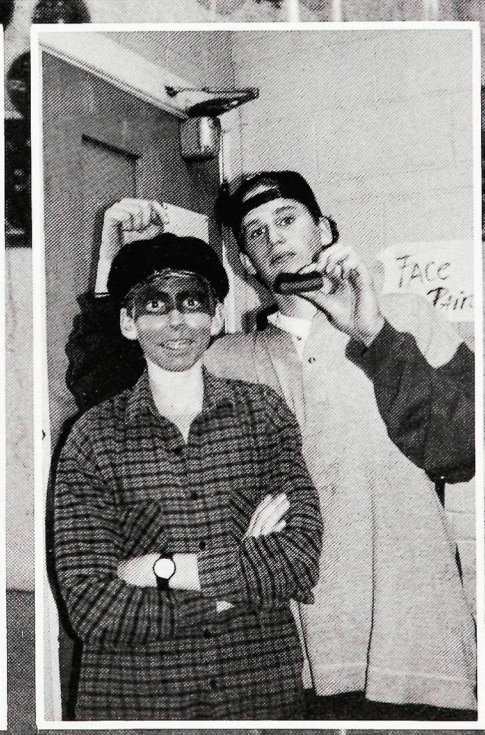

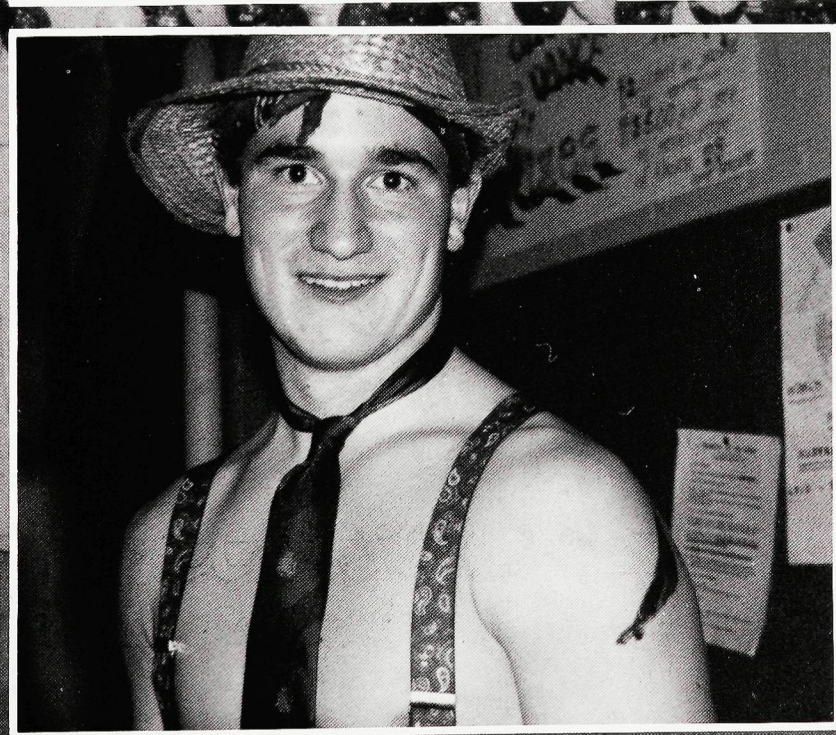

The cast was backed by a most conscientious crew, and the success of the production was an example of teamwork at its best, and that, when all is said and done, is what makes educational drama work.

OPTION BILINGUE
THEATRE FRANCAIS

L'année scolaire 91-92 s'est vue offrir l'opportunité d'un enseignement du théâtre en français. En plus des cours d'expression dramatique proprement dits, ce groupe d'élèves de Form V - s'est produit sur scène à deux reprises. Il nous a été donné de voir une création collective intitulée "SOMBRE DESTIN" à la fin du mois de février dernier. Chapeau à ces élèves qui ont écrit les textes, les ont joués malgré tout le pessimisme qui s'en dégageait. Le public a su vibrer aux textes puisqu'ils lui donnaient la possibilité de réfléchir profondément aux valeurs véhiculées. Les élèves suivants ont participé à cette production: Liz Jones, Sam Johnston, Hilary Webster, Félix Roberge, John Partridge, Alex Hackett et Tessa Jelowski. En tant que metteur en scène, je ne peux qu'être fière d'un tel travail de création en français.

La production du mois de mai se voulait plus longue et en même temps beaucoup plus difficile pour ces jeunes comédiens étant donné la longueur du texte. "ZONE" de Marcel Dubé mettait en scène de jeunes contrebandiers qui voulaient à tout prix sortir de leur noirceur sociale. Les élèves ont su relever le défi à force de travail et d'acharnement malgré la crainte que représentait la fait de jouer dans une langue seconde. Ils ont bel et bien étonné leur public à ce niveau. Il va s'en dire que l'expérience fut enrichissante pour les Greg Hill, Oliver Drake, Alex Hackett, Manon Rouillier, John Biron, Annabelle Pinero, Steve Shashoua, Alex Cobbett, John Partridge et Frank Raff.

Tout l'aspect technique a été assuré de façon magistrale par Ed Mortimer et son équipe composée de: Luc Delaney, Sébastien Lafaille, Tolly Bradford, Adrian Cox et Vanessa Lessard-Mangones.

En tant que professeur et animatrice de théâtre, je tiens à mentionner que ce groupe de travail fut exceptionnel tant la bonne humeur et le sérieux furent de connivence toute l'année. Merci à vous tous et j'espère qu'on nous offrira la possibilité de se revoir sur scène afin de polir davantage notre langue seconde.

The Stoker Art Festival

As one of the organizers of the 1992 Stoker Art Festival at B.C.S. I felt complimented and proud when so many of our more than six hundred visitors said "That was lovely, I enjoyed it so much, I hope you do it again next year." Well, the Stoker Art Festival is a B.C.S. event and we plan to keep it that way for many years to come!

I would like all of you students who "Lend a Hand" when it was needed to remember that you helped make it possible. Be proud that the compliments belong to you as well. So keep right on lending a hand and lets see just what we can achieve in the future!

Brendan Trower.

NAHEED AHMED

The years have been fun, don't forget the bets we made. Remember playing golf in the park and shopping? (Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles). When was the last time you went to lunch or crease? BEEP . . . When was that? Skip it! Always full of tricks and laughs. I wish you the best, promise me you'll never change only try being nicer to kids. Lock any one up lately?

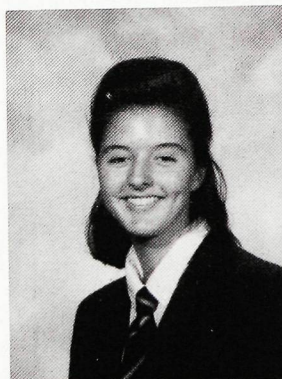

Love Deme.

THOMAS ASHCROFT

Hitman has been with us for three long years, and the only thing that has changed is his hair colour. "Honest, guys, I don't like Hilary!" Football and Arab jokes, Cameron and Vic, nothing will ever stop Tommy Gun from doing what he does best: (Place your best answer here: ☐)

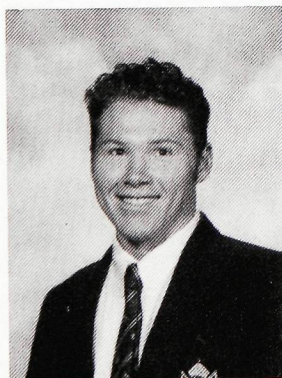

Zuke, F.C.

NADIA BENDRISS

Well you Norweigan babe, your two wonderful weird years at B.C.S. are over! Wally will now wander alone. Do you want to order out? Oh, That's true, we don't eat. Don't make Sofia laugh too hard or you might have some cleaning up to do! Hey, are we sneaking out tonight guys? . . . oh, hi Miss LeBaron! Don't go too crazy with all those "Love Potions" Nadia! We'll think of you whenever we see a tree, except the small ones: clap clap, BRAVO clap clap, BRAVO. See you in Spain.

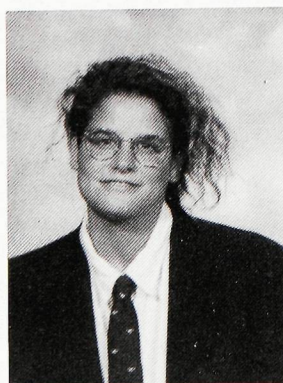

Love, The Wild Piglets.

DAVE LACEY BONDURANT

George was known well while he was here. Red man grew the burns as his 6 foot 2 inch lust, became an obsession, sorry about the boxers. Stories of winnebago adventures were interesting. From smells in Swedish cars, to smells of baguette infested legs. What he really wanted to do was ☐. Weeks of gettin' red during crease and a rocking night at the Cage, Alberta liscences don't apply. See you at the LION, with a pitcher and a nice piece of pie.

MITCH YOUNGE

Hey Mitch or I am supposed to say hey Schnitzel! What about twenty one, or would you rather play chess? This time we are going to bet but only if you will have given up cheating. I hope you are going to visit me in Schnitzel country while you are doing your stuff to become a loyer, so that we could pick up some German chicks and bread, made in Germany!

CARRIE BELTON

Hey Rasta man! Don't you know that Gordon is suffocating behind your bed with the dust balls? He needs someone . . . But don't worry, you'll get your M.P. size!
(do you get it now?) Most likely destination: surfing down a hill with dreads flying and smashing into . . . (Mont Tremblant?) One day we'll have to eat watermelons with wally. Keep flying high in the sky . . . beginning at Toronto airport! And don't worry, some day we'll find a point to all your stories.

Love, The Wild Piglets.

LAURA BOOTH

For two years you and I have been friends, and now that our years are coming to an end, I hope that our friendship won't. I know I wasn't a good friend, but I'm glad that you were. Remember our Thursday night arguments, barbecues with Steve and John K.
"Sometimes friends come in the worst packages, but don't let that discourage you . . . they certainly won't."

COLE BRADLEY

Uncle Coco came to us as a sheep farmer from N.H. You're 18th was wild and England was a month to remember. "Of two hearts one is always warm and one is always cold: the cold heart is more precious than diamonds: the warm heart has no value and is thrown away". (Graham Greene) If you can't understand this you'll never understand yourself. I'll always love you my friend. Lenk.

Steve, I never knew you were such a ladies man (six at one time). "Steve don't let Tolly hurt you like that." A master at 'sweeping' and three pointers, Steve was soon known as the 'stud on campus'. To the future NASA astronaut: as your friends we have seen many different sides of you. For starters Denissa/ the actress/ that sincere "fake" smile/ the Glass House Monkey. A couple of questions, do you put black over your eyes? He's really good looking, right? Want to lift people with our fingers, again? Afraid of B.C.S. ghosts? Finally, a few words, Quel beau —!
